Safety of Children Calls for Better Street

It is pleasing to hear that Bethel people are showing an interest in the improvement of Philbrook Street. This street, which leads from Main Street to the primary school, is one of the most important short stretches of highway in town, and one of the most dangerous. True, it is not much worse than it has been for several years, but the increasing traffic which it has come to bear through each school year, seems to have brought it to a point where more than a casual maintenance operation is imperative.

There should be no need to wait longer for a serious or fatal accident before a complete rebuilding job is begun. The crowded procession of school buses and small village primary children, which must use the narrow street every school day, invites needless hazards. The street is narrow, rough and steep. The older primary building, its pupils, and the homes along the street deserve a street comparable with that which leads from Main Street to Crescent Park School.

We believe that this condition has existed much too long. If it threatens to overburden the highway appropriation, there should be no objection to raising the needed money at a special town meeting. Surely this is as much needed as the improvement of High Street or the road at Chapman Brook which was accomplished last year.

If this can be done before the reopening of schools in September it will be a splendid investment in safety and convenience for years to come.

COMMENTS FROM THE TOWN MANAGER'S OFFICE

In order to comply with the "Tax Lien Law" it is necessary to mail a notice to all persons having unpaid Real Estate taxes assessed in 1953.

We will be very glad to cooperate with any who may be able to take care of these balances to save them the additional expense and bother of Tax Liens. Please call 69 if an evening appointment will help you.

The "Jim Uhlman" bridge on the Grover Hill road has recently been rebuilt. With the assistance of the Grafton Lumber Co., we were able to get six "Main Line Rail Road" steel rails to use as stringers in place of wooden stringers. It is hoped that this may last many years.

Tell of Road Improvement Problems At Alder River Grange Meeting

Highway reconstruction scheduled in the Bethel area pin-points the seemingly hopeless problem facing Maine's government in respect to its road-improvement program, members of Alder River Grange, East Bethel, were told Friday evening.

"The 228 miles of Route 28 leading into Bethel will be rebuilt at an estimated $100,000-per-mile capital investment but can only hope to earn back some $50,000-a-mile for its life-expectancy," said E A Stover, Portland Cement Association, basing his analysis on a daily traffic flow of 1200 vehicles and the 14-year service-life that bituminous pavements average. He contrasted it with the seven miles of old Route 28 concrete north of South Paris which is approaching 30 years in age and, consequently, paying dividends into the state treasury.

The same problem extends into even lower-type construction on the "secondary" system, said the speaker, citing 1.60 miles of Route

120, at North Woodstock, scheduled for improvement at an estimated $40,000 per mile but capable of earning only some $20,000-a-mile over its anticipated lifetime, with a daily traffic flow of some 500 vehicles.

Stover said there is nothing mysterious about the "earning" or "losing" power of a road. Maine has approximately $30 million a year highway income from 3,282,000 miles of vehicle travel. Thus, every mile travelled on any highway earns 8-10ths of a cent for that particular mile.

"Deduct the excessive maintenance that goes with flexible-type pavements, via repeated patching and periodical surface treatments and you have the answer as to why more than 80 per cent of the better roads in America are built with portland cement-concrete pavements, particularly in that the modern 'air-entraining' concrete offers a minimum 50-year service-life," said Stover.

80 MILES OF HIGHWAY NOW BUILDING IN 34 PROJECTS

The current Maine highway construction program is being carried out in a highly commendable manner, according to James M Acheson, president of the Maine Publicity Bureau.

Acheson, in a letter to State Highway Commission chairman David H Stevens, complimented Stevens in his recent instructions to all highway personnel to co-operate in doing everything possible to keep traffic moving over all construction at a minimum of inconvenience to the motorist this summer.

Copies of Stevens' instructions have been sent, along with a letter from Guy P Butler, executive manager of the Bureau, to over 300 travel agencies and automobile clubs throughout the east in an attempt to present a true picture of Maine's highway building program.

Butler points out that "with over 22,000 miles of highway in the State of Maine, less than 80 miles are under construction at the present time and this is divided up among 34 different jobs. Only eight of these 34 projects are over three miles in length and none are more than seven miles." These out-of-state travel organizations are asked to help "refute all unfounded rumors regarding construction on Maine highways" and are advised that "in a short time Maine will have a highway system second to none."

"This good public relations move by the highway department and Butler's follow-up letter should go a long way toward dispelling many of the misconceptions regarding highway construction by those planning Maine vacations this year," Acheson stated.

What's September 17th?

The 4,000 people of Louisville, Ohio, are making preparations for the greatest celebration in the city's history on September 17. Can anybody guess what they will be celebrating — on September 17? Not many Americans can. And yet the event that occurred on September 17, 1787, might well be considered of greater importance to mankind than any since the days of Jesus Christ on earth. The event was the adoption of the United States Constitution by the Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia.

The Constitution created a national government to strengthen individual freedom and safeguard that freedom against all encroachments including government itself. James Wilson, a delegate and noted lawyer, said at the opening of the Constitutional Convention: "For the first time in six thousand years of human history men have come together to deliberate and peacefully resolve what their government shall be." The Constitution they thereupon drafted and signed is the greatest governmental document in human history. Originated in Louisville.

That's why little Louisville, Ohio, will stage a city-wide celebration and have special instructions on the Constitution in the schools on September 17 for the third consecutive year. Citizens will thrill to marching bands, parade floats, and a big auditorium program; and then solemnly reflect on the debt each of them owes to the principles of freedom written into the Constitution 167 years ago. A few other communities will celebrate too, but none perhaps on the scale and with the enthusiasm of the Louisville citizens.

In fact, Louisville people were the first in recent years to celebrate Constitution Day. A group of representative citizens got together three years ago and decided Louisville ought to do something to dramatize the value of the Constitution and teachings of constitutional government. All the patriotic, civic, educational, religious and business organizations joined on September 17, 1951, in a celebration bigger than any Fourth of July in Louisville's history.

Legislature Adopted

Then early in 1953, John Lehman and Earl Bauer, members of the Ohio House of Representatives, acting at the request of Louisville people presented House Joint Resolution No. 24, setting aside September 17 as Constitution Day through out Ohio calling for special instructions on the Constitution in Ohio schools and for appropriate celebrations. It was adopted. Early in September last year Gov. Frank J. Lausche proclaimed the day of freedom and urged state-wide observance. Louisville proud as a peacock went all out.

The Louisville Herald splashed 12 photographs of the celebration activities on its front page. Its story of the big day took up the remainder of page 1. "Startling off the grand and glorious event," reported the Herald proudly, "was a colorful and meaningful parade which wound its way through the main streets of Louisville, with what seemed like the entire population turning out." And the entire population participated too in all the other events of the day. Civic, literary, musical and dramatic presentations, a constitutional convention.

Why Not Nationwide?

The John Lehman, who introduced the Constitution Day resolution in the Ohio House, has just written me. "When the fact that a national day is being made to observe this day properly here in Ohio, it is thought that probably it is time to suggest that it be made a national day. It is a day of freedom and of state-wide observance. Louisville proud as a peacock went all out."

DALE CARNEGIE

★ AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING" ★

STANLEY W. CALL, 16 Vanderbilt Drive, Lake Success, New York, and his wife were sitting in the lounge of their new home in South Africa listening to the British Broadcasting Company news from London. The voice over the radio announced, "The British Government has devalued the Sterling Pound and tomorrow the exchange rate will be $2.80 per pound instead of the present rate of $4.00 per pound."

The walls began to close in on Stanley Call. He had four thousand United States dollars invested in his home and his investment had depreciated to $2,800, a loss of $1,200, all because of the action of the British government.

CARNEGIE

The catastrophe started the worry bugs working on him. He found that as the days went by he became more distressed and fatigued. At first he felt that he had lost $1,200, then the thought struck him that perhaps he would lose his entire investment. Those uncomfortable days followed. Then he began to think, "Lose it all! Why he had lost it all! So what! The worst that can happen is the loss of the entire sum of money invested. Having arrived at that conclusion, he experienced tremendous relief."

As soon as he had conceded the worst, his worries ended. From that time on he really enjoyed life because he went to work on gaining back some of his losses.

He declares that this same magic formula has since worked on all of his problems. First he analyzes the problem. Next he decides what is the worst possible result and then accepts it. Then he starts doing something to improve the condition, and invariably his worry is dispelled, life takes on a different meaning and he is happy again.

Economic Highlights

Happenings That Affect the Future of Every Individual — National and International Problems Inseparable From Local Welfare

President Eisenhower announced that the visit of Sir Winston Churchill and Mr. Eden to Washington was the Prime Minister's own idea. This in itself is an indication of the tremendous seriousness of the world situation, in view of the fact that Sir Winston is in frail health, and has been advised by his family and friends to lay down the heavy burdens of office. The President also said, in effect, that one reason the meeting was suggested is to do something to counter the growing fear that a deep rift exists between England and the United States.

The obvious fact is that, from the Western point of view, the world problem has worsened materially in a brief period of time. The clearest example is the Geneva conference where, due to circumstance beyond his control, Mr. Dulles found himself with few cards to play. Britain clearly has no stomach for intervention in Southeast Asia. There is a feeling in many quarters that to all intents and purposes Indochina is now lost to Communism, and that any future stand must be taken elsewhere, perhaps in Thailand. Samplings of Congressional opinion in this country show a very strong distaste for any long-term military operations anywhere in Asia, and it is most unlikely that, at this time, the President could get Congressional sanction for ordering American forces into action. And the French situation, in American officials' eyes is depressing in the extreme. There is no evidence that a French government can be formed which will have any permanence or real authority. France is sick of war, is plagued with communist drive-of-peace propaganda, and there is widespread fear of German rearmament, a step which in Western circles. The IRS wants these profits taxed at the higher income tax rate, while builders claim they should be taxed at the lower capital gains tax rate.

Gov's April charges were followed by the removal or resignation of eight top FIA officials, including FIA Commissioner Guy T. O. Hilday. Senator Harry Flood Byrd (D., Va.) asked the Justice Department to start legal proceedings against Clyde L. Powell, former Assistant FIA Commissioner, and this has produced there will be more resignations and some criminal prosecutions as housing prices continue.

The FIA home repair program, from its institution in 1951 to March, 1954, had insured $1,037,735 property improvement loans totaling $7.8 billion.

There were intended for such improvements as insulation, heating, roofing, interior decorating and landscaping. In making these loans — up to $1,000 for single-family dwellings and $10,000 for multi-family housing — the FIA relied on the "credit judgment" of the lending institutions, says it did little checking.

Congressional investigators have been told that congressional aides, known as "suppliers" or "spies" (the word "spies" is used in a derogatory sense) talked home owners into contracting for repair prices at exorbitant prices, and delivered a "shoddy" job or no job at all, after which the salesman left town. In some cases, it was said, the repair job for which the home owner paid some $10,000 was given away for nothing. The FIA insured loan was necessary to begin with.

SCANNING THE NEWS

STANDING OUT in 1954 as an "experimental venture" the Federal Housing Administration steadily developed into a multi-billion dollar government insurance enterprise. By the end of March, 1954, FIA had insured $1,037,735,000 worth of mortgage and property improvement loans made by private lending firms. FIA insurance has covered mortgages on homes and rental and cooperative projects, as well as repair and improvement loans for single and multi-family dwellings.

Already shaken by scandal, the FIA may be further rocked as Congress and the Administration deliberate the charges of abuse involving or affecting the government, builders, home owners and tenants.

Allegations of "padding" started began last April when Albert M. Cole, head of the Housing and Home Finance Agency, charged that thousands of home owners had been "padding" of millions by high pressure home repair salesmen who overcharged them for "shoddy" jobs paid for with Federal Housing Administration insurance.

Investigative into FIA programs have been undertaken by several agencies and critical statements, including some by members of Congress, indicate that the housing agency may face additional home-repair charges.

The National Housing Service has for some time been looking into some of the cases where it claimed builders reaped about $6 million

my PET PEEVE

by Mike Bennett

STOUTHEARTED and brave is the individual who passes up a second helping of potatoes with no more for inspiration than the hope of cutting off a loop of belt and punching in a new hole with the family ice pick.

Just as proofworthy is the individual who can manage to put down — whether in a cup of tea, a glass of water, or between two slices of hard toast — one of those horrible little pills guaranteed to "make you eat like a bird." I admire these people, yes, but I still think the idea of dieting is strictly for the birds.

Experience has led me to believe that most folks, well-rounded, adjusted human beings become snarling, quarrelsome and overly-aggressive bullies when they don't get enough to eat. The only way they can satiate the hunger pains in their stomach is by taking verbal bites out of everyone within shouting distance.

A friend recently told me about a man with the right idea — the "fat boy" in his home town who was the most popular citizen and the sure-fire brunt of every practical joke. As he grew older, he waxed rounder, his popularity increased. One day the local doctor suggested a diet, "for health's sake." Said the fat man, "What, and risk the loss of my best personality asset?"

Me? At the moment I struggle along with well over 200 pounds carelessly distributed on a frame designed for a capacity load of about 170. But, I continue to fight my wife's determined efforts to get me on a diet. I should lose enough in the battle to get back within the weight limit without enduring either pills or starvation.

THE LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

In this essay we will delve into and survey the simple question of "what is socialism and who is a Socialist?" and why has such a simple query been made so dubious. You go to work and look at the ballot on election day and "socialists" on any ticket are scarce as goose or chicken teeth.

In Europe every Party has the word "Socialist" hitched on with some other name. And look at Europe — needin' somebody to keep 'em bailed out no end. When socialism comes in, boxes dry up — government and cities and burps pay no taxes. Whoever is left has the fun of making up the deficits.

Now, you accuse somebody you might run across down on Main Street of being a Socialist — and somebody is gonna get hurt, most likely. But I deduct it is just the word we don't like — we don't mind being a Socialist under some other name. Look at government in business across this fair land, and wherever you see a town in a dilemma on where to get more do-re-mi, you will likely find Mr. Snafu trying to run some local citizens out of business. Try and figure out how you think your own business would do if the City Hall took it over. Socialism has its nose under our tent right now — and then some. Our billocks need a valve grind — or something.

Yours with the low down,
JO SERITA

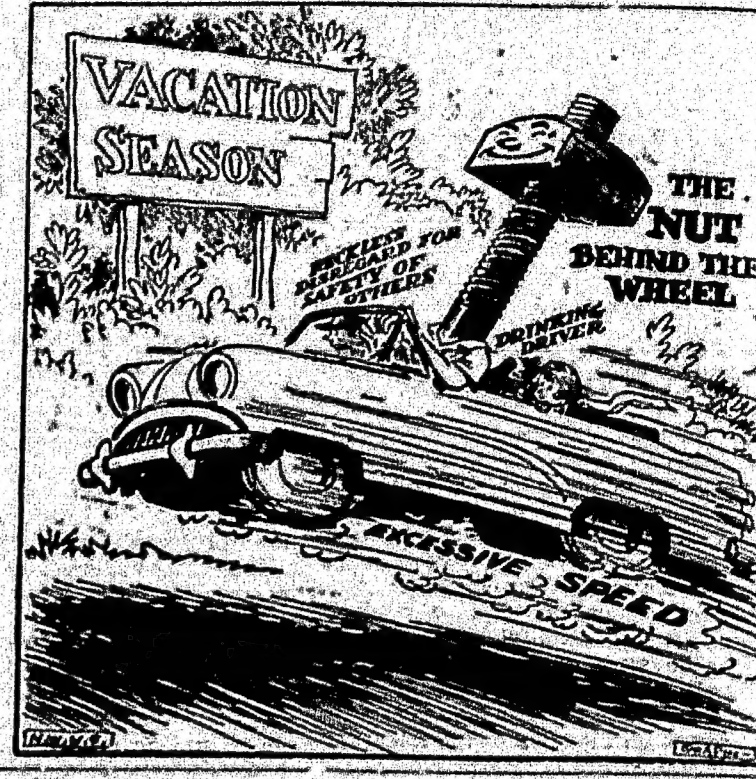

GRASS ROOTS OPINION

International Falls, Minn., Daily Journal: "There's no denying that the money from Washington comes in handy for the state agencies and subdivisions of government facing ever-increasing demands for service and improvements. The fact remains, however, that eventually all the money for government functions comes from the taxpayers. There's no magical factor in government financing. No agency of government has access to funds other than those which are paid by or levied against the credit of the American people."

CONGRESSIONAL QUIZ

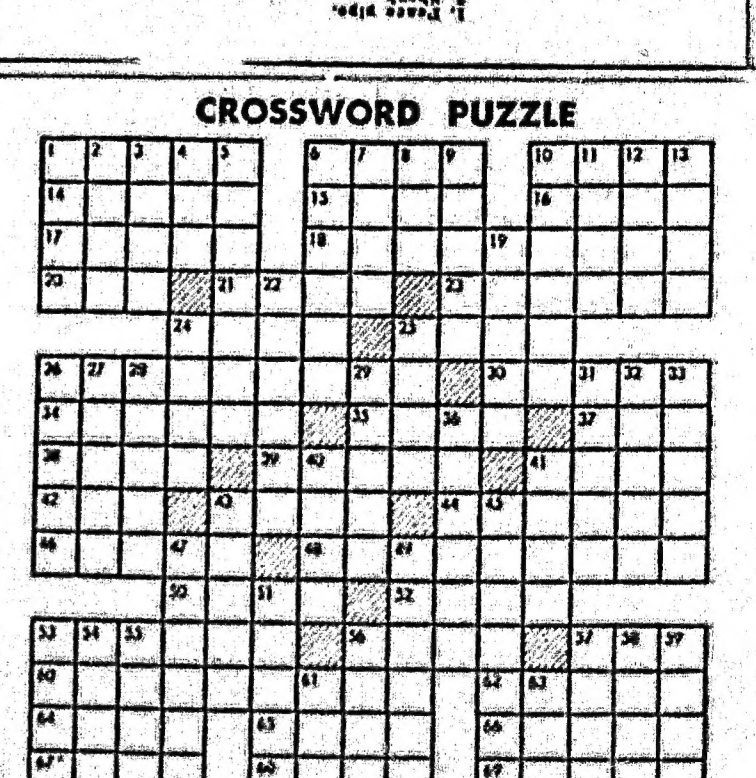

- 1.—What is the seating capacity in each chamber of Congress?
A.—The House of Representatives, with 435 Members, has 448 seats on the "floor." Each seat is tufted leather-covered and has leather-padded arm rests. On the Senate "floor" there are 98 arm-rest chairs and 98 mahogany desks, one for each Senator. In both chambers, there are special seats set aside for the presiding officer, and for clerks, reporters of debate and others. Visitors to Senate sessions may choose from among 621 seats in the gallery. The House has 616 gallery seats for visitors.
- 2.—Can a member of the armed services write to his Congressman stating his views on legislation?
A.—Section 4a of the Universal Military Training and Service Act (Public Law 51 of the 82nd Congress) reads: "No member of the Armed Forces shall be restricted or prevented from communicating directly or indirectly with any Member or Members of Congress concerning any subject unless such communication is in violation of law . . . or the security and safety of the United States."
- 3.—What is the difference between an appropriation and an authorization?
A.—An authorization grants permission to establish or continue a certain program, puts a ceiling on monies that can be appropriated to finance it and specifies the general aim of the new program. Congress also makes contract authorizations, permitting the government to make financial commitments by letting contracts for goods and services. An appropriation is a grant to actually spend the money authorized, often is less than the amount authorized. (Copyright 1954, Congressional Quarterly)

STRENGTH FOR THESE DAYS
Call unto Me, and I will answer thee, and show thee great and mighty things which thou knowest not.—(Jeremiah 33:3.)

No matter how worldly successful a man may be, no matter what important tasks he performs or what high office he holds, it is as nothing compared with the great and mighty things that the humblest human among us may know and do, if he calls upon God, and God is with him wholly.

Volunteer leaders in agriculture, homemaking, and 4-H club work carry much of the information to the people of Maine from the Extension Service. These rural leaders play a vital role in Extension work.
